Conference Goals
Bring together diverse stakeholders to share and discuss latest scientific knowledge, experiences, effective intervention policy and strategies, research programmes and regulatory updates to promote and sustain public health nutrition in the SEA region.

About the Conference
Several Southeast Asia countries are experiencing a rapid nutrition transition, where an increasing number of the countries in the region are facing a double burden of malnutrition, with persisting issues of undernutrition especially among children, and at the same time heading into an epidemic of obesity, diabetes and other non-communicable diseases related to over-nutrition. In cognizance of the similarities in the threat of double burden of malnutrition problems in the SEA region, the promotion of productive exchange of information, ideas and dialogue among multiple stakeholders in coordinating efforts, implementing nutrition research and intervention programmes in the region is desired. The holding of the 1st SEA-PHN Conference provides a platform for interaction and development of potential cross sectors collaborations; strengthen current partnerships in combating public health nutrition issues of the Southeast Asia region.

Who Should Attend
Public health professionals, nutritionists, dietitians, food scientist, policymakers from government departments and agencies, academia, research organisations, professional bodies as well as the food industry.
